Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 20 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloudy and damp to start with some brighter conditions later.

Today:
Cloudy, murky and damp in the morning with some residual showers from overnight, but these soon fading away as brighter conditions gradually develop from the west. This in turn may trigger some sharp showers, especially for northern counties. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Tonight:
Showers are possible for some during the evening, and then further widespread heavy rain pushes in from the south overnight, persisting into the morning. Minimum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Monday:
Cloudy and breezy on Monday as rain continues across the region, with some heavy downpours possible. Turning drier in the evening for many as the rain clears. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Showers are possible on Tuesday but drier later with sunny spells. Dry on Wednesday with further spells of sunshine. A risk of some showers on Thursday, potentially heavy.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.